

The Neutrik Group develops, designs, manufactures, and globally distributes innovative electrical and electronic interconnect products and systems under the NEUTRIK, REAN and CONTRIK brands. As a multi-brand company, the Neutrik Group has long dominated the world of professional entertainment and industrial applications, setting new standards in a wide range of segments.

Global Inventory and Demand Planner (m/f/d)

Your role:

The Global Inventory and Demand Planner – no surprise – is responsible for the global inventory and demand planning for multiple sites.

This includes

- developing and validating forecasts by analyzing all factors such as historical sales, market trends, seasonality, promotions, customer sell-out, customer projections jointly with Key Account Management, Product Management, and our Sales Organizations
- overseeing the regular communication and coordination between Sales Organizations, Product Management, Global production, and Supply planning
- assuring on time supply by supervising and analyzing product level forecasts, material availability inventory and stock levels
- proactively managing excess stock levels, safety stock and material re-order points
- developing various reports with regards to inventory levels, inventory turnover, safety stock, re-order-points
- analyzing KPIs such as forecast accuracy, material availability and inventory turnover as well as identifying actionable insights
- additionally, leading monthly demand reviews together with the Sales Organizations
- Supporting the S&OP process by taking on a key role in the global S&OP reviews
- working jointly with Product Management to identify possible deletions or additions to our product range
- driving product launches, changes, and additions in the forecasting system
- optimizing and developing performance tools and the S&OP process continuously

Your profile:

- successfully completed Higher Education (preferably specialized in Supply Chain)
- at least 3 years of experience in inventory and demand planning or a similar role such as global planning, inventory management or procurement
- fluency in English and German is a requirement, any other languages are an asset
- solid knowledge in SAP and Excel
- ability to prioritize and to foster relationships with cross functional and global teams
- highly motivated and passionate individual with exceptional communication skills as well as a good level of autonomy
- analytical, result driven mindset and ability to deal with a fast moving and multi-cultural environment

What we offer:

- many development and learning opportunities
- flexible working-hours & working remotely is possible
- free fruits & subsidized gym-packages and massages
- discounts on tickets for several cultural and sports facilities

If you want to have the unique opportunity to participate in the design, digitalization, and implementation of a global S&OP process, send your application to and join our dynamic team in a fast-growing organization where you can realize your own ideas.

Tatiana Hoy, Head of Corporate HR, careers@neutrikgroup.com